

The Guild of Psychotherapists Pluralist Supervision Course for Psychoanalytic Psychotherapists 2015

Course Leader and Lecturers

Heather Pryce (Course Leader) came from a medical background to train at the Guild of Psychotherapists. She ran a psychosexual counselling service for 8 years and still works in the NHS. Additionally she has a private practice and supervises for a number of therapy organisations.

Fiona Palmer Barnes is an analytical psychologist in Bath, having recently moved from Herefordshire. She teaches and provides supervision groups within the NHS and private hospitals. In 1998 her book Complaints & Grievances in Psychotherapy was published by Routledge. She was Chair of ethics for UKCP 1997–2001. She co-edited “Values & Ethics in the Practice of psychotherapy & Counselling” (2001) and wrote Ethics in Supervision (“Vision and Supervision” 2009)

Charles Brown trained at the Guild of Psychotherapists and subsequently in supervision. He works within a therapeutic community with men and women who are in emotional, psychological and social difficulties. He has a private practice in South London and supervises groups and individuals in a variety of settings. He is an experienced addictions therapist.

Alan Corbett trained at the Guild of Psychotherapists and the Portman Clinic, and was previously director of Respond, and national Clinical Director of the CARI (Children at Risk in Ireland) Foundation. He works in private practice and consults to organisations working in the field of psychotherapy, training, sexual trauma and intellectual disability. He wrote Disabling Perversions: Forensic Psychotherapy with People with Intellectual Disabilities (Karnac, 2014).

Paul Gurney studied Philosophy & Politics at Southampton University and Psychodynamic Counselling at Goldsmiths' College before training as a psychoanalytic psychotherapist at the Philadelphia Association. He is a member of the Philadelphia Association & The Site.

Marie Maguire founded the Guild's Supervision Course and ran it for three years. She wrote Men, Women, passion and Power: Gender Issues in Psychotherapy (2004) and co-edited 2 other books, including Psychotherapy with Women (1997). She was on the Guild's Training Committee for 17 years and has a private practice as a psychoanalytic psychotherapist and supervisor in South London.

Helen Morgan is a Fellow of the British Psychotherapy Foundation; past chair of the British Association of Psychotherapists and a training analyst for the Jungian Analytic association within the British Psychotherapy Foundation. She has published a number of analytical papers.

Lesley Murdin is a teacher, lecturer and supervisor with a psychoanalytic psychotherapy practice in Cambridge. Her books include How Much is Enough? (2000) on endings in psychotherapy, Setting Out (2000) on beginnings, Understanding Transference (2010) and How Money Talks. She has recently published her book Managing Difficult Endings. An honorary fellow of UKCP, she was National director of WPF therapy and is now chair of the psychoanalytic section of the FPC.

David Richards is a psychodynamic psychotherapist and supervisor. He has worked extensively in the public and private sectors and has particular experience of working with the LGBT communities and with older adults. He has a wide theoretical interest with particular focus on issues of sexuality and identity.

Dr Stuart Stevenson is an organisational consultant and psychoanalytic psychotherapist in private practice. He consults to organisations around conflict resolution, team processes, and the impact of trauma and risk on organisational functioning. He has researched and developed theory on the impact of trauma and risk dynamics on professional relationships.

Jean White is a psychoanalytic psychotherapist and supervisor practising in London for well over 30 years. She lectures widely, both in London (including the BJP Annual lecture 2007) and internationally. She has published many journal papers and a widely acclaimed book, Generation: Preoccupations and Conflicts in Contemporary Psychoanalysis (Routledge 2006).

Dr Deborah Wilde is a psychoanalytic psychotherapist in private practice in Cambridge. She trained with the Cambridge society for Psychotherapy, after a number of years of teaching and research in the biological sciences. She has been a course tutor on the Postgraduate Diploma in Counselling at Cambridge University.

The Guild of Psychotherapists

47 Nelson Square
London SE1 0QA

t: 020 7401 3260

e: admin@guildofpsychotherapists.org.uk

www.guildofpsychotherapists.org.uk

The Guild of Psychotherapists

Pluralist Supervision Course for Psychoanalytic Psychotherapists

Course Leader Heather Pryce

7 Saturdays from June 2015 to January 2016

27 June, 18 July, 12 September, 10 October, 14 November, 12 December, 16 January 2016

Times

27 June 9:30 – 4:45,
all other dates 10 – 4:45.

12 lectures

15 hours minimum individual supervision of supervision (to be paid for separately)

3 individual tutorials

Shared lunch

Small group supervision

Reading seminars

Optional 5,000 word essay

Fees

£1,575 for Guild members
£1,850 for students from other organisations which includes 9 months' membership of pepweb. Fees exclude 15 hours individual supervision of supervision (or the equivalent in a group). There is an administrative fee of £75 for all applications.

Venue

The Guild of Psychotherapists
47 Nelson square, London SE1 0QA

The Course

An innovative training, concentrated into 7 days of seminars, structured around different theories about the history and practice of psychoanalytic supervision.

- In-depth discussion of transference, ethics, boundaries & the constraints of working within different settings.
- Ongoing exploration of differences including class, culture, race and sexuality.
- Emphasis on developing practitioners' own distinctive supervisory style.
- Suitable for experienced supervisors and more recently qualified clinicians.
- Equips students to register with the British Association of Psychodynamic and Psychoanalytic Supervisors. It is anticipated that BAPPS will become an accrediting member of UKCP & CPJA

The Course Format

Each Saturday seminar: 2 morning lectures or 1 longer presentation.
Afternoons: Small Supervision of Supervision groups plus Reading Group to study the psychoanalytic literature on supervision.

Lectures

Week 1: 27 June

Introduction; discussion on the History of Psychoanalytic Supervision
Heather Pryce

Transference & Countertransference in Supervision: a Pluralist View
Jean White

Week 2: 18 July
Sexual Orientation & Identity in Supervision
David Richards

Erotic & Perverse Transference in Supervision
Marie Maguire

Week 3: 12 September
Supervision in an Organisational Context
Stuart Stevenson

Parallel Process in Supervision
Deborah Wilde

Week 4: 10 October
The Effects of Difference of 'Race' & Colour in Supervision
Helen Morgan

Class in Supervision
Paul Gurney

Week 5: 14 November
Groups as a Medium of Supervision
Charles Brown

Supervision of non-Psychoanalytic Workers
Alan Corbett

Week 6: 12 December
Ethics & Supervision
Fiona Palmer Barnes

Week 7: 16 January 2016
Endings in Supervision
Lesley Murdin

For further information and application forms please contact

The Guild of Psychotherapists
47 Nelson Square
London SE1 0QA
t. 0207 401 3260
e. admin@guildofpsychotherapists.org.uk

Closing date for applications
31 May 2015