

Course Leader and Lecturers

Heather Pryce (Course Leader) came from a medical background to train at the Guild of Psychotherapists. She ran a psychosexual counselling service for 8 years and still works in the NHS. Additionally she has a private practice and supervises for a number of counselling organisations.

Fiona Palmer Barnes is an analytical psychologist in private practice in Herefordshire. She teaches and provides supervision groups within the NHS and private hospitals. In 1998 her book Complaints and Grievances in Psychotherapy was published by Routledge. She was Chair of Ethics for UKCP 1997-2001. More recently she wrote Ethics in Supervision in "Vision and Supervision" (2009).

Charles Brown trained at the Guild of Psychotherapists and subsequently in supervision. He works within a therapeutic community with men and women who are in emotional, psychological and social difficulties. He has a private practice in south London and supervises groups and individuals in a variety of settings. He is an experienced addictions therapist.

Linda Buckingham trained at the Tavistock Centre and became a Lead Child Psychotherapist in Lewisham. She was on the Guild of Psychotherapists Training Committee for 12 years and has a special interest in the theoretical underpinnings of psychoanalytical theory. She has written many articles for psychoanalytic journals.

Alan Corbett trained at the Guild of Psychotherapists and the Portman Clinic, and was previously Director of Respond, and National Clinical Director of the CARl (Children at Risk in Ireland) Foundation. He works in private practice and consults to organisations working in the field of psychotherapy, training, sexual trauma and intellectual disability.

Hilary Dowber is a psychoanalytic psychotherapist and member of FIP. She has worked with gypsy travellers to help families access the education system. Her book "Travellers and School" was published in 2000; and her paper "Identity Formation and the Collective Self" in 2003.

Frank Lowe is a Consultant Social Worker and Psychoanalytic Psychotherapist at the Tavistock

Clinic. He is a clinician and lecturer at the Tavistock, has written a number of papers on race and psychotherapy and is the Chair of Thinking Space; a monthly learning forum at the Tavistock which seeks to promote thinking about psychotherapy and marginalised communities.

Marie Maguire founded the Guild's Supervision Course. She wrote Men, Women, Passion & Power: Gender Issues in Psychotherapy (2004) and co-edited 2 other books including Psychotherapy with Women (1997). She was on the Guild's Training Committee for 17 years and has a private practice as a psychoanalytic psychotherapist and supervisor in South London.

David Richards is a psychodynamic psychotherapist and supervisor. He has worked extensively in the public and private sectors and has particular experience of working with the LGBT communities and with older adults. He has a wide theoretical interest with particular focus on issues of sexuality and identity.

Dr Stuart Stevenson is an organisational consultant and psychoanalytic psychotherapist in private practice. He consults to organisations around conflict resolution, team processes, and the impact of trauma and risk on organisational functioning. He has researched and developed theory on the impact of trauma and risk dynamics on professional relationships.

Jean White is a psychoanalytic psychotherapist and supervisor, practising in London for over 30 years. She lectures widely, both in London (including the BJP Annual Lecture 2007) and internationally. She has published many journal papers and a widely acclaimed book, Generation: Preoccupations and Conflicts in Contemporary Psychoanalysis (Routledge 2006).

Dr Deborah Wilde is a psychoanalytic psychotherapist in private practice in Cambridge. She trained with the Cambridge Society for Psychotherapy, after a number of years of teaching and research in the biological sciences. She has been a course tutor on the Postgraduate Diploma in Counselling at Cambridge University.

The Guild of Psychotherapists New Pluralist Supervision Course for Psychoanalytic Psychotherapists 2013

The Guild of Psychotherapists

47 Nelson Square
London SE1 0QA

t: 020 7401 3260

e: admin@guildofpsychotherapists.org.uk

www.guildofpsychotherapists.org.uk

New Pluralist Supervision Course for Psychoanalytic Psychotherapists 2013

Course Leader Heather Pryce

7 Saturdays from January to July 2013

19 January, 23 February, 16 March, 27 April, 18 May, 22 June, 20 July

Times

19 January 9:30 – 4:30,
all other dates 10 – 4:30.

12 lectures

15 hours individual supervision of supervision, (to be paid for separately)

3 individual tutorials

Shared lunch

Small group supervision of supervision

Reading seminars

Optional 5,000 word essay

Fees

£1,500 for Guild members
£1,750 for students from other organisations which includes 9 months' membership of Pepweb. Fees exclude 15 hours individual supervision of supervision. There is an administrative fee of £75 for all applications.

Venue

The Guild of Psychotherapists
47 Nelson Square, London SE1 0QA

The Course

An innovative training structured around different theories about the history and practice of psychoanalytic supervision.

- In-depth discussion of transference, ethics, boundaries & the constraints of working within different settings.
- Ongoing exploration of differences including class, culture, race and sexuality.
- Emphasis on developing practitioners' own distinctive supervisory style.
- Suitable for experienced supervisors & more recently qualified clinicians.
- Equips students to register with the British Association of Psychodynamic & Psychoanalytic Supervisors.

The Course Format

Each Saturday seminar: 2 morning lectures or 1 longer presentation. Afternoons: Reading Group to study the psychoanalytic literature on supervision & small Supervision of Supervision groups.

Lectures

Week 1: 19 January

Discussion on The History of Psychoanalytic Supervision
Marie Maguire and Heather Pryce

Transference & Countertransference in Supervision: A Pluralist View
Jean White

Week 2: 23 February
Supervision of non-Psychoanalytic workers
Alan Corbett

Parallel Process in Supervision
Deborah Wilde

Week 3: 16 March
Class, Race & Culture in supervision
Frank Lowe, Hilary Dowber

Week 4: 27 April
Sexual Orientation & Identity in Supervision
David Richards

Erotic & Perverse Transference in Supervision
Marie Maguire

Week 5: 18 May
Supervision in an Organisational Context
Stuart Stevenson

Groups as a medium of Supervision
Charles Brown

Week 6: 22 June
Ethics & Supervision
Fiona Palmer Barnes

Week 7: 20 July
Endings
Linda Buckingham

For further information and application forms please contact The Guild of Psychotherapists
47 Nelson Square
London SE1 0QA
t. 0207 401 3260
e. admin@guild of psychotherapists.org.uk

Closing date for applications
14 December 2012