Psychoanalytic Psychotherapy Training

The Guild of Psychotherapists has over 40 years' experience delivering a highly professional training in psychoanalytic psychotherapy.

As a pluralist training, no one body of theory is regarded as holding 'the truth'; trainees are introduced to the richness and diversity of psychoanalytic perspectives on unconscious life, on sources of human distress, and on the psychotherapeutic encounter.

The Guild aims to involve trainees in the continuing evaluation and reformulation of psychoanalytic thinking, emphasising a questioning approach and the importance of recognising context – historical, cultural and individual (biographical) – in which concepts have developed, and taking account of the ethnocentric, gender and anti-homosexual ideology which may be present in theory.

Introduction to Psychoanalytic Concepts

The Guild will also offer an Introduction to Psychoanalytic Concepts, a ten-week course on Wednesday evenings in the Summer Term 2022. This course will be of interest to health professionals and anyone interested in psychoanalytic ideas, as well as those considering future psychoanalytic training.

Come and meet members of the Training Committee and current and past trainees.
